Loose Ends

Loose ends are messy. Remember the debacle of the hanging chads in the 2000 presidential election in Florida? Lest I fail to report what God did in answer to your prayers, let me tie up some loose ends from my last letter.

I know Marleen Virtue benefited from many prayers following Ray's passing. I am thankful to report that she made the move closer to her daughter in Germany, was able to find a buyer for her home in Hamburg, and will officially retire from BWM on August 30. I am also thankful to report that the church in Germany called BWM missionary Tim Peterson to help them toward full autonomy under a national pastor.

Our son, Captain Daniel Brosnan, successfully completed the ENJJPT pilot training program and has been assigned to fly the newest variant of the C-130 Hercules gunship aircraft, the AC-130J Ghost Rider, under Air Force Special Operations Command.

The Vinokuroffs did receive renewal of their permanent residence permits in Russia and are in the process of securing property for their church.

The Freels report that their coworker's condition is stable, but not improving. They are shouldering more responsibilities and remain uncertain about the future of the ministry in Romania.

BWM Missionary Orientation at Camp Joy

The Lord wonderfully blessed my meetings in Indiana, Illinois, Toronto, at our BWM spring Board meeting and BWM Missionary Orientation at Camp Joy in Whitewater, Wisconsin.

In addition to the faithful sacrifice of churches and individuals who financially support our ministry, we are awaiting confirmation of a resumption of support from a church that previously supported us in South Africa.

No End

It seems that I am perpetually planning, conducting or recovering from an overseas trip. Perhaps that is why I almost always mention a trip in my letters. But I also recognize the key role these trips have in nurturing my relationship with our missionaries and helping me better understand them and their ministries. That is why I, once again, ask for your prayers as I begin planning a fall trip to Europe. I will be ministering to our missionaries in France, where one of their key concerns is the erosion of religious liberty under the guise of the war on terror.

Prayer & Praise Items

Tamara has a follow-up visit with the vein doctor in August, but she is experiencing much less pain in her leg and her mobility has increased significantly.

Forty-nine individuals are planning to attend the BWM European Missionary Retreat in Germany from July 22-26. Unfortunately, Tamara and I will not be among them. As in the past, Cindy Bunker from the BWM home office will be conducting the children's program.

Don't miss profiles of BWM's new appointees and a report from Missionary Orientation in the summer BWM Messenger. I'm especially thankful to have appointees going to the European fields of Germany and Hungary!

We are thankful that Tamara had the opportunity to spend a week with her aging mother in Arizona, and I also recently spent a few days with my father and step-mother in Indiana.
